COMMENCEMENT ADDRESS

C.S. LEE

C.S. Lee immigrated from South Korea at the age of 4. He grew up in Vancouver, Washington where sports played a big part of his life. He was the quarterback of the football team and also played basketball and tennis. However, his love for film and stage steered him through classical training as an actor. He graduated with his BFA from Cornish College of the Arts and his MFA at the Yale School of Drama. He spent almost 10 years in NYC performing in off Broadway plays, TV and Film. Ultimately he landed the role of Masuka on the hit Showtime series DEXTER which brought him out to the west coast. Known for his skills as a character actor he has played in many TV and Film projects over the years. He now resides in Los Angeles and despite the perfect sunny days he sorely misses the gloomy rains of the Pacific Northwest.

"I firmly believe that if we could all just listen to each other a little more. If we could all start speaking our truth a little louder. And most importantly if we could all start taking action to address the wrongs that are being committed all over the world, right in front of us, as a community we can shape our reality into something truly beautiful."

Rowan Gallagher, Theater

"Cornish has taught me so much, taught us so much, and I hope that we continue to push boundaries, make new things and create our own communities. As we move into the professional world, we do so with thick skin and perseverance."

Chloe Maddison King, Art

"Some of us are ready to tackle the social issues, and are determined to do the work to correct the course of our world. But, we all need to hear this: it's okay to take space, to breathe. You have accomplished one of the most difficult milestones in a lifetime, during one of the most difficult eras to do so. It's okay to rest. Sit down. Love your pets. Call your parents, your grandparents. Eat good food. Drink bubble tea."
